Winter 2008 Newsletter

After spending most of the summer in New Jersey, participating in art shows and visiting family, I returned to sunny, hot, Puerto Rico the beginning of October. I am very happy to report that the stateside art festivals were a phenomenal success! Granted, people are tightening their belts, but if this was any measure of how it is when times are bad, I can't wait until we all start spending again. Truly, I was grateful to see how well our art was received by the public, and I'll admit to being totally thrilled to have people throw money at me! Anyone who's ever put their art up for sale would agree.

I was invited to appear on a local PBS television program, "Myrna y Chispi y la gente de Hoy". Thank goodness the interviewer's English was better than my Spanish, which made for some humorous moments.

It should air on Nov. 24th, 11am EST. To watch TuTv online: www.tutv.puertorico.

The newsletter comes out quarterly, but add me to your 'Favorites' list and check periodically for new pieces.

Thank you for visiting!
